888 Society LLC — Roles & Responsibilities

Oct 18, 2026 · @Jmendezbeatz

Overview

888 Society LLC (Illinois) is owned equally by three co-founders: JRZ, J Hookz and J Mendez, at 33% each with equal votes. Roles split the work, not the ownership. Each co-founder leads one lane and makes the day-to-day calls in it.

Lane	Co-founder	Owns	One-line job
Production & Technology	J Mendez	The sound, the gear, the website	Make every record sound right and keep the studio's tech running
Marketing & Brand	JRZ	Socials, content, brand, promos	Get artists to know us and book us
Operations & Client Relations	J Hookz	Bookings, money, paperwork, client care, outreach	Turn interest into paid sessions and keep clients coming back

A good test for the split: every task in the studio should have exactly one owner. If two people own it, nobody does. If nobody owns it, it goes to the weekly meeting and gets assigned.

Role 1: Co-Founder & Head of Production and Technology (J Mendez)

Mission: Every record that leaves 888 Society sounds professional, gets delivered on time, and makes the artist want to come back. This co-founder also builds and runs the studio's tech, from the gear to the website.

Leads the decisions on: sound quality, session workflow, gear purchases under the spending limit, the service menu and prices (proposed to the other two for a vote), and the website.

A day in the life: session day

Times are an example for an afternoon-and-evening studio. Shift them to your real hours.

Time	What J Mendez is doing
11:00 AM	Check the shared calendar and J Hookz's notes on today's clients: who, what package, what they're recording, any reference tracks
11:30 AM	Answer production questions J Hookz passed along (custom quotes, technical questions from clients)
12:00 PM	Finish mix revisions for yesterday's client and send them to J Hookz to release once paid
1:30 PM	Set up for the first session: open the template, label tracks, check the mic, interface, headphones and monitors, make sure there's enough drive space
2:00 PM	Session 1 starts. Get the artist comfortable, run a quick sound check, track vocals, give creative direction
4:00 PM	Session 1 wraps. Save and back up the session (local drive + cloud), write session notes: what got done, what's next, revisions promised
4:30 PM	Break, eat, reset the room with J Hookz
5:00 PM	Session 2 starts
7:00 PM	Session 2 wraps. Back up, write notes, tell J Hookz if the client wants to book more time
7:30 PM	Mixing block: work through the mix queue in order of due date
9:30 PM	Update the project tracker (status of every open project), check tomorrow's calendar, shut down gear

Throughout the day, let JRZ film behind-the-scenes clips when the artist has said OK.

A day in the life: non-session day

Time	What J Mendez is doing
Morning	Mixing and mastering queue: clear anything due in the next 3 days first
Midday	Beat making and in-house production for the 888 catalog
Afternoon	Website work with Claude: add new portfolio pieces, fix anything broken, improve booking and payments
Afternoon	Gear and software: run updates, test equipment, check licenses, clean and organize cables
Evening	Learn and level up: tutorials, new techniques, reference listening to what's charting

Every week

- [ ] Clear the mix and master queue so nothing is past its promised date
- [ ] Confirm every session from the week is backed up in two places
- [ ] Send JRZ at least 2 pieces of content: before/after mix clips, beat snippets, session moments (with artist approval)
- [ ] Update the website portfolio with any newly released client work
- [ ] Make or finish at least 2 beats or productions for the 888 catalog
- [ ] Give a production update at the weekly meeting

Every month

- [ ] Production report: projects delivered, on-time rate, revisions per project, hours booked
- [ ] Review the gear wishlist and bring any purchase over the limit to a vote
- [ ] Check software, plugin and website subscriptions: renew what's needed, cancel what isn't used
- [ ] Archive finished projects and clean up drive space
- [ ] Register new 888-owned songs with your PRO (BMI or ASCAP) and the MLC where it applies

Every quarter

- [ ] Review prices against local studios and how full the calendar is, then propose changes to the other two
- [ ] Full gear check: anything wearing out, anything that needs repair or replacement

Detailed duties

Sessions and sound

- Engineer, record, produce, mix and master all client sessions
- Run the technical side of every session: mic choice, signal chain, headphone mixes, recording levels
- Set the 888 quality bar and don't release work that doesn't meet it
- Give artists honest, respectful creative direction
- Deliver final files in the agreed formats (WAV, MP3, stems) by the promised date
- Track how many revision rounds each package includes. Tell J Hookz when a client goes past it so it gets billed

Files and backups

- Name every project the same way, for example `ArtistName_SongTitle_2026-10-18_v1`
- Back up every session the same day: one local drive plus one cloud copy
- Keep an archive so any past project can be pulled up for a remix, re-release or dispute
- Release final files and stems only after J Hookz confirms the client has paid in full

Gear and studio tech

- Maintain all equipment: computer, DAW, plugins, interface, mics, monitors, cables
- Keep a list of every license and subscription with renewal dates and cost
- Keep a gear wishlist ranked by how much it would improve the sound or the business
- Fix problems or get repairs done fast, so no booked session gets cancelled for tech reasons

Prices and packages

- Write the service menu: hourly recording, per-song mix, mix + master bundles, beat leases and exclusives, artist development packages
- Give J Hookz a clear price sheet so quotes are always consistent

Website and digital tools

- Build and maintain the 888 Society website with Claude: services, prices, portfolio, booking and deposits
- Set up the shared tools all three co-founders use: calendar, money tracker, project tracker, file storage, password manager
- Put the content JRZ makes on the site, and the booking and payment setup J Hookz needs

Producing for 888

- Make beats and in-house productions that can be sold, leased or placed
- Build a catalog the business owns, with split sheets for every collaboration

Standards

- No session starts without a confirmed booking and deposit from J Hookz
- No files go out without a payment confirmation from J Hookz
- Every project is backed up the same day it's worked on
- Every promised delivery date is met, or the client hears about a delay before the date, through J Hookz

Hands off to the other co-founders

- Booking DMs and price questions → J Hookz
- Payment questions and chasing balances → J Hookz
- Posting content → JRZ

Role 2: Co-Founder & Head of Marketing and Brand (JRZ)

Mission: Make 888 Society the studio local artists know, trust and want to be seen at, and turn that attention into booking inquiries.

Leads the decisions on: what gets posted and when, the brand's look and voice, and promos within the approved marketing budget.

A day in the life: content and posting day

Time	What JRZ is doing
10:00 AM	Check all accounts: overnight comments, DMs, mentions, story replies. Send booking questions to J Hookz right away
10:30 AM	Look at yesterday's posts: views, saves, shares, follows. Note what worked
11:00 AM	Scroll for trends: sounds, formats and hooks that are working for studios and artists right now
11:30 AM	Edit content from recent sessions: short clips, before/after mixes, photos
1:00 PM	Write captions and hashtags, then schedule the next 2 to 3 days of posts
2:00 PM	Post today's main piece and stay on it for the first hour: reply to every comment
3:00 PM	Outreach: comment on and share local artists' posts, tag artists who recorded at 888, set up collabs
4:00 PM	Design work: flyers, promo graphics, event posts, merch ideas for J Hookz
5:00 PM	Update the content calendar and share it with the other two

A day in the life: session day

Time	What JRZ is doing
Before the session	Ask J Hookz to confirm the artist is OK with being filmed. Plan 3 to 5 shots to get
During the session	Film behind-the-scenes moments, the artist in the booth, J Mendez at work, reactions to playbacks. Stay out of the way of the recording

Time	What JRZ is doing
After the session	Get a quick testimonial or shoutout clip from the artist. Grab their handles for tagging
That night	Post a story from the session and save the best clips for later

Every week

- [ ] Post 4 to 5 feed posts or reels and daily stories across Instagram, TikTok and YouTube Shorts
- [ ] Plan next week's content in the content calendar
- [ ] Make at least 1 piece from each content series: before/after mix, making the beat, artist spotlight, studio life
- [ ] Reach out to 10 local artists or creatives online (comments, DMs, collab ideas)
- [ ] Log how many booking inquiries came from social this week
- [ ] Give a marketing update at the weekly meeting

Every month

- [ ] Marketing report: followers, reach, engagement, top 3 posts, and booking inquiries from social
- [ ] Plan one promo or campaign: holiday deal, first-session discount, referral push, giveaway
- [ ] Review any paid ads: money spent vs. bookings that came in
- [ ] Refresh website photos and portfolio content and hand them to J Mendez
- [ ] Promote any 888 events or merch drops J Hookz has planned

Every quarter

- [ ] Review the brand: are the logo, colors and voice consistent everywhere?
- [ ] Decide which platforms are working and where to put more effort

Detailed duties

Social media

- Run all 888 accounts: Instagram, TikTok, YouTube, and any new platform the team adds

- Post on a set schedule, planned a month ahead in a shared content calendar
- Answer comments and tag artists. Send booking questions in DMs to J Hookz the same day
- Keep every account login in the shared password manager, so the business always controls its accounts

Content creation

- Film behind-the-scenes clips during sessions, only with the artist's OK
- Run regular series: before/after mixes, making the beat, artist spotlights, studio tours, gear breakdowns
- Cut short clips from finished songs once the artist approves
- Shoot photos for the website portfolio

Brand

- Own the 888 Society brand kit: logo files, colors, fonts, tone of voice
- Make sure everything the public sees looks like one studio: posts, flyers, website, merch, email
- Sign off on any design that carries the 888 name

Promotions and growth

- Plan launches and promos: first-session discounts, holiday deals, referral rewards, giveaways
- Set up collabs and shoutouts with artists after their sessions
- Run paid ads only within a budget the team votes on, and report what each one brought in

Tracking results

- Track followers, reach, engagement and, most important, booking inquiries from social
- Work with J Hookz so every new client gets asked how they found 888
- Drop what doesn't bring bookings and do more of what does

Standards

- Never post a client's song, face or session without their permission
- Every booking question in the DMs reaches J Hookz the same day
- Nothing goes out off-brand: same logo, colors and voice every time
- The content calendar is always at least one week ahead

Hands off to the other co-founders

- Price quotes and bookings → J Hookz
- Website updates → J Mendez
- Technical or sound questions from followers → J Mendez

Role 3: Co-Founder & Head of Operations and Client Relations (J Hookz)

Mission: Turn every inquiry into a booked, paid session, keep the business side running smoothly, and make every client feel taken care of so they come back and bring friends.

Leads the decisions on: the booking calendar, client communication, deposit and payment rules, studio upkeep, and which outreach events to attend.

A day in the life: session day

Time	What J Hookz is doing
10:00 AM	Check every inbox: website form, DMs JRZ passed along, texts, calls, email. Answer every new inquiry
10:30 AM	Send quotes from the price sheet and book new sessions on the shared calendar. Request deposits
11:00 AM	Send reminders: 48 hours out for sessions in two days, and a same-day text to today's clients
11:30 AM	Prep notes for J Mendez: who's coming, which package, what they're recording, anything special
12:00 PM	Money check: log yesterday's payments and expenses. Follow up on any unpaid balances
1:00 PM	Prep the room: clean, take out trash, stock water and snacks, set lights and temperature
1:45 PM	Greet the first client. Collect the remaining session payment if it's due today. Get the session agreement signed, plus split sheets if anyone else wrote on the song

Time	What J Hookz is doing
2:00 PM	While the session runs: handle new inquiries and paperwork, and stay close if the client or J Mendez needs anything
4:00 PM	Session wraps. Thank the artist, offer the next booking, collect payment for any extra time
4:30 PM	Reset the room with J Mendez for the next session
5:00 PM onward	Greet session 2 and repeat. At the end of the night, lock up and log the day's money

A day in the life: non-session day

Time	What J Hookz is doing
Morning	Inquiries, bookings and reminders, same as every day
Midday	Follow-ups: thank clients from the past week, ask for reviews, offer rebooking. Contact past clients who haven't booked in 60 days
Afternoon	Paperwork and money: invoices, receipts, update the money tracker, file signed agreements
Afternoon	Studio upkeep: restock supplies, deep clean, report anything broken to J Mendez
Evening	Outreach: go to an open mic, show or local event, meet artists, hand out cards, invite them to book

Every week

- [ ] Answer 100% of inquiries within 24 hours
- [ ] Book sessions and collect deposits for every one
- [ ] Follow up with every client whose project was delivered this week
- [ ] Update the money tracker: every dollar in and out
- [ ] Go to at least 1 local music event and bring back new contacts

- [ ] Send the client list of new contacts to JRZ for tagging and follow-up
- [ ] Give the operations and money update at the weekly meeting

Every month

- [ ] Money report: income, expenses, profit and unpaid balances
- [ ] Client report: sessions booked, new vs. repeat clients, how each new client found 888
- [ ] Contact every past client who hasn't booked in 60 days
- [ ] Check stock of studio supplies and merch, reorder what's low
- [ ] Plan or work on one event: listening party, showcase or producer night

Every quarter and year

- [ ] Get receipts and records ready for the accountant
- [ ] Remind the team of estimated tax payments and the Illinois LLC annual report deadline
- [ ] Review the studio's policies (deposits, cancellations, late arrivals) and propose changes to the other two

Detailed duties

Bookings and scheduling

- Answer every booking inquiry (DMs, website, calls, texts) within 24 hours
- Quote from the official price sheet. Send anything custom to J Mendez
- Book sessions on the shared calendar and confirm the date, time, length, package and price in writing
- Send reminders 48 hours and 2 hours before each session
- Handle reschedules and no-shows using the studio policy

Money

- Collect a deposit before any session is locked in
- Collect the full balance before final files go out, then tell J Mendez the client is paid
- Send invoices and receipts for every payment
- Log every dollar in and out in the shared money tracker the same week
- Keep receipts for every business expense for taxes

Paperwork and policies

- Keep the standard documents ready: session agreement, deposit and cancellation policy, split sheets, beat lease agreements
- Get the right paperwork signed before or at each session
- File every signed document in one shared folder

Client experience

- Greet artists when they arrive and make them feel at home
- Keep the room clean, stocked and ready before every session
- Follow up within a week after delivery: thank them, ask for a review, offer the next booking
- Keep a client list with contact info, what they recorded and when they last booked
- Handle complaints first. Bring in J Mendez only for sound or quality issues

Outreach and new business

- Go to local open mics, shows and events to meet artists and bring them in
- Build relationships with local artists, managers, promoters, venues and other creatives
- Run the referral program that JRZ promotes

Side income and events

- Run merch: ordering, stock and sales (JRZ signs off on designs)
- Plan 888 events: listening parties, showcases, producer nights
- Look for extra income, such as renting out the room, selling beat packs, and partnerships

Standards

- No session is on the calendar without a deposit
- No files go out until the balance is paid
- Every inquiry gets an answer within 24 hours
- Every dollar is logged the same week

Hands off to the other co-founders

- Sound, mixing or technical questions → J Mendez
- Content, filming and posting → JRZ
- New contacts from events → JRZ for follow-up online

Shared responsibilities and decisions

Decisions inside your lane are yours. Decisions that affect the whole business take 2 of 3 votes, and the biggest ones take all 3.

Decision	Who decides	Example
Day-to-day work inside one lane	That lane's owner	Which post goes up Friday, which mic to use, when to confirm a booking
Spending up to $____	Lane owner, logged in the money tracker	A new cable, a small ad boost, cleaning supplies
Spending over $____, prices, new services, hiring help	2 of 3 members	A new mic, raising hourly rates, hiring an assistant engineer
Taking on debt, adding or removing a member, changing ownership, selling or closing the business	All 3 members, in writing	A loan, a new partner, a buyout

Fill in the spending limit together. Many small studios start at $100 to $250.

Every member also commits to

- Showing up to the weekly meeting, or sending an update if you can't
- Answering team messages within 24 hours
- Using the shared tools (calendar, money tracker, file folder, password manager) so nothing lives only on one person's phone
- Never spending business money on personal things, and never mixing personal and business accounts
- Representing 888 Society professionally in public and online
- Raising problems early at the meeting instead of letting them build

When you disagree

1. Talk it out at the weekly meeting.
2. If you're still stuck, vote. 2 of 3 wins.

3. For all-3 decisions that stay stuck, wait a week and revisit, or bring in a neutral advisor such as your accountant.

Rhythm and scorecards

One 30-minute meeting every week and one longer review every month keep the three lanes in sync.

Weekly meeting (30 minutes, same day and time)

1. Each member, 5 minutes: what I did, what's next, what I need from you
2. Numbers check, 10 minutes: sessions booked, money in, money out, unpaid balances, booking inquiries
3. Decisions and new tasks, 5 minutes: assign every new task one owner and a due date

Monthly review (1 hour)

- J Hookz: money report (income, expenses, profit, what's owed)
- JRZ: marketing report (growth, top posts, inquiries from social)
- J Mendez: production report (projects delivered, on-time rate, gear needs)
- Agree on next month's goals for each lane

Scorecards

Set targets together in the first meeting, then review them monthly.

Lane	What to measure each month	Target
J Mendez	Projects delivered on time	____%
J Mendez	Files backed up the same day	100%
J Mendez	Website up to date with new work	Yes / No
JRZ	Posts published vs. planned	____ of ____
JRZ	Booking inquiries from social	____
JRZ	Follower growth across platforms	____
J Hookz	Inquiries answered within 24 hours	100%

Lane	What to measure each month	Target
J Hookz	Sessions booked	____
J Hookz	Deposits collected before sessions	100%
J Hookz	Repeat clients	____
All three	Monthly profit	$____

Client journey: who owns each step

Money is collected before every session and before files go out client journey · 9 steps across 3 lanes

JRZ brings the artist in. J Hookz books them and takes the deposit. J Mendez records and mixes. J Hookz collects the balance before the files go out, then follows up so the artist rebooks and JRZ can share the work.

Sign-off

All three members agree to these roles as a working draft. Review them on Jan 18, 2027 and adjust anything that isn't working. These roles sit alongside your operating agreement and don't change anyone's 33% ownership.

Co-founder	Role	Signature	Date
J Mendez	Head of Production & Technology
JRZ	Head of Marketing & Brand
J Hookz	Head of Operations & Client Relations

If your operating agreement says how duties or member pay work, check that this doc lines up with it. If you want these roles to be binding, have an Illinois business attorney add them to the agreement.
